5. Social Media Award:

Euprera Euroblog Social Media Awards

As part of its EuroBlog investigation into the impact of social media on public relations practice Euprera intends to make three awards at its Spring Symposium in Ghent, Belgium, February 25-27 2010.

The awards are open to anyone with an affiliation to a European University/University College (Bachelor/Master).

Candidates must have maintained an online presence equivalent to at least ten weblog posts before the deadline for entries, Friday January 8, 2010, and a major part of their content must be connected to communications/ public relations.

One award will be made to a student studying for BA or BSc, one will be made to a postgraduate student (MA or MSc) and the third award will be made at the discretion of the judges and may be the result of a nomination from a person other than the author of the blog.

The winning entrants will be invited to make a short presentation on their work at the Ghent Symposium. Travel¹ and accommodation expenses will be covered by the Award organisers, Euprera and University College Arteveldehogeschool, department of Communication Management.

Criteria

Focus/ vision

Content: originality, creativity, presentation

Appreciation of the opportunities offered by social media

Contribution: new ideas, insights, value to peers

Engagement with online community

Entry: <http://publicsphere.typepad.com/euprerasma/>

Entrants must submit entry form, plus a short (max 500 words) critique of the strengths and weaknesses of their work, clearly setting out the intention behind the work.

If you would like to nominate someone else's work please contact them beforehand and gain their agreement before doing so.

Language

Entrants can write in any European language but the entry form should be completed in English, French or German.

Winners will present their blog in English.

¹ The Award organizers, being University College Arteveldehogeschool, will cover flights within Europe only up to a maximum of 400 Euro. Accommodation will be booked for 2 nights.
